Hundreds of People Responded to the Invitation of the Montana Last Evening.

Out-of-Town Guests as Well as Home Folks Enjoy a Bounteous Hospitality.

Some of Those Prominent in Montana Affairs Who Were Present-The Ladies and Their Costumes.

The reception given by the Montana club last evening was a brilliant social success. More than four hundred guests were present, including the leading people of our own and those of sister cities, and the members of the organization, with their wives, sisters and daughters.

The elegant and spacious parlors, brilliantly lighted and crowded with the beauty and chivalry of Montana, presented a scene in which all present felt a pardonable and justifiable pride. The most excellent music rendered by Yaeger's band added to the charm and brilliancy. The tables spread billiard hall and eard room were tastefully adorned, while the menu was all that could be desired. The reception committee received in the lounging parlor and library, and displayed much tact and skill in having so large a company enter at once into the enjoyment of the evening.

The gentlemen were attired in full dress while the ladies' toilets were rich and ele mt. Among those present were: Miss Leslie, red cloth and black velvet. Mrs. Haine, brocade silk and lace trim-

THE SISTERS' ANNUAL FAIR

The Fair at Assembly Hall in the Granite Block a Grand Success.

It is Running in Full Blast and Will Continue all of Next Week.

Most Popular Legislator-A Gold Watch for a Young Lady. The Sisters Fair at the Granite block, down stairs, is now in full blast and is a perfect bower of feminine and artistic beauty, a perfect fairyland. Pretty girls, prettily dressed preside at beautifully arranged booths where either delicacies, refseshments or eigars can be had or chances in a thousand and one articles can be bought each from a dime to a dollar. Last evening the spacious hall was crowded with visitors and the man who escaped with a two-bit piece in his pocket was indeed fortunate, for none could resist the seductive pleadings and gracious smiles of the young ladies, who, for sweet charity's sake, let no man escape.

At the first booth Mrs. William Hartwig and Mrs. Redmon will accommodate the visitor with chances in all kinds modate the visitor with chances in all kinds of fancy goods, including silverware, lamps, dolls, plush albums, perfumery and many articles of infant apparel.

Mrs. C. L. Dahler is equally as obliging. She presides over a very pretty booth which is filled with a bevy of elaborately dressed dolls including a blushing "bride." Mrs. Dahler dressed all of them herself. She also has a nice selection of handkerchief cases, hand-worked, hand-painted vases, plush pineushions and many other articles. plush pineushions and many other articles. Alongside of Mrs. Dahler's booth is a beau-tiful chamber set donated by Mr. A. P.

Mrs. John Hardwick and her daughters also have charge of a very pretty booth of fancy goods including toilet plush sets, handsome hand-painted banner, and elab-orate plush table scarf, chair scarfs, albums, Miss Emma Noonan's booth is also devoted to fancy work of every conceivable description, but all useful articles for Christmas gifts. An eider down comfort, very valuable; two steel engravings, and a beautiful oak bedroom set, the latter presented by Hermann, the furniture dealer.

Miss McEvily, Miss Hermann and Miss May O'Brien, dispense harmless liquid refreshments to the thirsty, and whether it is because the young ladies are pretty and popular, or whether the young men are really thirsty it is noticeable that the boys are continually drinking.

Misses Celia and Mamie McHugh conduct a wheel of fortune which is very popular with the children. The wheel did a rushing business last night. A prize is won at every turn.

Miss Tautphaus and Mrs, Claffin manipulate the dice-box at a pretty booth where cigars are sold, and the young men have much fun with the ladies calling "horses," "dutch flushes," "full house," etc. The quality of the cigars is not questioned.

Mrs. Quinn and Miss Dowling preside over one of the prettiest booths in the hall. It is filled with valuable China and silver wear, dolls, furniture setts and many useful articles.

Miss Lizzie McEvily, Josephine and Annie Hermann, enclosed in a bower of stars and stripes and national bunting supply those having a sweet tooth with dainty

The ice cream department is in charge of Miss Daly and Mrs. McDonald and does a land office business. Besides the ladies who are stationed at the booths young ladies with pencil and book in hand hurry to and fro soliciting chances all stations in Montana on its lines at one of the force of the round trip. Tickets will be on sale December 24th, 25th and 31st, 1889, and January 1st, 1890, good going on date of sale and good for return passage up to and including January 3d, Granite hall. THE DENVER WAY.

How a Montana Sheriff was Cheated Out of

A story comes from Denver in connection with the hunt for alleged coal thieves, who have stolen many carloads of coal from the Northern Pacific during the past eighteen months. It is to the effect that a Montana sheriff, who does not dve 1,000 miles from the capital, went to Denver to arrest Ed Fennell, a railroad employe who figured conspicuously in the coal stealing cases last summer. The sheriff apprehended his man and placed him in charge of a spotter. The railroad boys soon became aware of Fennell's arrest and started a scheme to prevent his being taken off. The sheriff went to a hotel with his prisoner and the spotter accompanied them. The story goes that while the sheriff was in his room he received a bogus telegram which a messenger delivered and immediately left without enquiring if there was any answer. When this sheriff read the telegram he found that it required an immediate reply and A Gold-Headed Cane to be Presented to the that it required an immediate reply and forthwith went to the telegraph office, leav ing Fennell in charge of the spotter. When he returned the spotter was laid out on the floor and the prisoner was gone. The Montana officer has since returned home. and Fancy Decorated China.
